California State University Chancellor Joseph I. Castro visited Cal State LA virtually, marking the third stop on his first 23-campus tour of the CSU system. Castro took part in a full day of Zoom meetings during the March 16 visit, speaking with students, faculty and staff to get to know the university and the Cal State LA community. Castro is the first Californian and the first person of color to serve as CSU chancellor. He assumed his role as CSU chancellor in January. He was previously the president of Fresno State. The grandson of immigrants from Mexico and the son of a single mother, Castro was the first in his family to graduate from a university.
