For example, if you want to be an Analyst, you should take Fin 4370, 4500, and either 4470, 4400 or 4310 as your electives (if you are interested in Corporate Treasury or International Fund Management, you probably want to take FIN 4310). It is also recommended that Fin 4370 be taken as quickly as possible, for students wishing to be involved in managing the student fund or getting involved in the FMA CFA challenge.

Career Notes to Finance Students:

In general, Fin 4370 is the single most important elective to take. It is required for most financial careers, with the exception of commercial lending and mortgage banking. Fin 3350 is only of value to those interested in financial advisory, private lending, or mortgage banking for home owners. Taking it because it is easy wastes a valuable elective if you are not pursuing one of those career paths and many employers discount that course. Choose your courses to match your career goals.
