Subject: Proposed Changes to The Class Syllabus Policy in Chapter 5 of the Faculty Handbook (EPC 18-19/AIRS 18-01)

The Class Syllabus Policy was sent to EPC in AY2017-18 from AIRS with a focus on online and hybrid courses and accessibility issues regarding the course syllabus. EPC discussed and approved the policy with some changes and then sent it to the Senate on March 2019. The senate discussed the policy in fall 2019. During the discussions in the Senate, a few questions were raised and the policy was then sent back to EPC to address these issues. One of the main debates was regarding the deadline for instructors to distribute the class syllabus. EPC decided to change the current policy and set a deadline for the “first day of class”. Also, based on the feedback from the senate, EPC decided to create two categories of required items on the syllabus: one for items that cannot be changed during the term, and the other for items that instructors have the flexibility to modify if needed. The main rationale for this change is to make sure the central parts of the course like student learning outcomes remain unchanged. Specifically, the grading policy was an item that EPC wanted to make certain cannot be changed during the term to ensure fairness and enable students to plan ahead.

Here is the summary of changes to the policy:

Lines 3-5: A brief explanation for the purpose of the class syllabus is given.

Lines 6-8: Since the syllabus will be provided on the first day of the class, these lines are no longer necessary.

Lines 8-11: Two changes are made here; first, to meet the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA) compliance and to align with the existing Accessible Instructional Materials policy of the Cal State LA Faculty Handbook (Senate: 10/14/14; President: 10/22/14), all syllabi need to be provided in an accessible electronic format rather than waiting for such a request from an OSD student. The second change is the timing of when the syllabus must be presented to students. After much deliberation, the committee decided to change this to “no later than the first day of class”. This change was made considering the importance of fairness to all students especially students with disabilities. The committee considered the difficulty for instructors who are asked to teach a class just a few days before the first meeting, but at the end decided that the policy should not be written based on exceptions. Also, the new language that permits changes to parts of the syllabus during the term should mitigate this issue.

Lines 11-13: This part is already covered in the new language.
Lines 14-15: Required items on the syllabus that cannot be changed are listed after these lines.

Lines 16-17: Since this item will be moved to the second category, it is removed from here.

Lines 19-20: The mode of instruction reinforces for students that the section they registered for will be meeting using a specific mode of instruction. This is especially important for classes with multiple sections that may be using different modes of instruction depending on the section.

Line 24: Since this item will be moved to the second category, it is removed from here.

Lines 25-27: Removed since it is now distributed into several sections that follow.

Lines 28-29: Makes "required course materials" its own section and ensures that students are informed if the course requires any additional technology, software, or related tools. If there are available support resources, such as a helpdesk contact or online documentation, these should also be explicit in the syllabus so that students have timely notification of any additional technology they may need to purchase and to quickly address any access/usability issues early in the term.

Lines 30-36: Removed the previous language and replaced it with a more detailed and explicit statement stating that syllabi should include: the basis for evaluation in the course, the grading scale used for the course, and the relation of the evaluated work to the final course grade.

Lines 37-48: A separate section for Class Attendance Policy is created here to emphasize that it cannot be changed during the term.

Lines 44-45: The required items that can be changed during the term are listed after this.

Lines 46-48: This item is moved here, and the campus phone extension is made optional since not all instructors have a telephone extension.

Lines 49: The topical outline is moved here since the committee feels the instructor must have the flexibility of changing the course outline based on the flow of the course and to have the freedom to innovate in the classroom.

Lines 50-52: Makes “course guidelines and procedures” its own section and recommends that instructors set out their expectations for in-class and online discussions, course communication preferences, etc. Such items are especially important not only for hybrid and online courses but also for face-to-face courses.
