Cal State LA biochemistry major receives CSU Trustees’ Award for Outstanding Achievement
Alhambra resident plans to develop a mentoring program in Guam for students interested in a STEM career

When she was growing up in Guam, Janielle Cuaal’s favorite subject was science. But her family didn’t consider that an appropriate field for a woman, so she set out to earn a degree in nursing.
But her passion for science and research proved so strong that she changed her field of study, even though that meant she would have to pay her own way through college.
Ms. Cuaal is now a biochemistry major at Cal State LA and one of 23 students statewide to receive the 2018 California State University (CSU) Trustees’ Award for Outstanding Achievement, the CSU’s highest recognition of student achievement and scholarship.
“It’s really exciting,” Ms. Cuaal, an Alhambra resident, said. “Receiving this scholarship will help me focus on school and research rather than worrying about financial issues. I am proud to represent minorities, women, and people from Guam trying to pursue a career in the STEM field.”
Ms. Cuaal was honored for her superior academic performance, exemplary community service, and significant personal accomplishments during the CSU Board of Trustees meeting in September. She was awarded $6,000 and named a SoCalGas Scholar.

“Ms. Cuaal is an incredibly focused and determined student,” said Cal State LA President William A. Covino. “Upon completing her Ph.D., she plans to return to Guam and help others pursue careers in science. I am certain Ms. Cuaal will make contributions that will reflect well on the California State University.”
