What determines Academic Probation? - the Cal State LA Online Catalog

- Students are placed on Academic Probation at the end of a term if:
  Either their grade point average at Cal State LA or their cumulative grade point average (GPA) in all college work attempted falls below a C (2.000).

- They continue on Academic Probation until their Cal State LA and cumulative GPA is 2.000 or higher - or

- They continue on Academic Probation until they are disqualified in accordance with the regulations for academic disqualification.

Types of Academic Standing

- Academic Good Standing = 2.000-4.000 GPA
- Academic Probation = 1.999 and below
- Academic Disqualification = (depends on units taken)
Cumulative GPA vs. Cal State LA GPA

- A cumulative GPA is the calculation of a student’s course work from all schools attended.

- A Cal State LA GPA is the calculation of a student’s course work done at Cal State LA only - aka: “residency.”

- All students have both, but only students that have transfer work will have two different GPA calculations whereas freshmen will have the same GPA on both accounts.

- If either GPA falls below a 2.000 - automatic Academic Probation.
Academic Probation

Happens when:
- A student’s Cumulative or Cal State LA GPA falls below 2.000 and that student will remain on Academic Probation until their cumulative /or Cal State LA GPA reaches or exceeds 2.000.

Recommendation:
- Students who are eligible for continued enrollment can be limited to a course load of 12 units or less. (Students can be limited until Good Standing is reached = 2.000+).

Graduation Requirement:
- Must achieve at least a 2.000 in their cumulative and Cal State LA GPA to graduate.
