

24th Annual American Literature Association Meeting May 23-26, 2013

Conference Details: For the 2013 conference, the ALA will again rely on electronic submission of program information and conference proposals. As usual, the societies that make up the American Literature Association will organize much of the program. Individual societies will issue their own calls for papers, which may be listed on the ALA website as well as on the societies' own website and publications. Guidelines for author societies are detailed towards the end of this notice.

Individuals may also propose papers or panels to the conference director by January 30, 2013. Preference will be given to papers and panels that represent authors, genres, or topics that are not covered by the societies that make up the ALA. Proposals must follow the guidelines described at the end of this notice.

Tentative Conference Schedule:

Thursday, May 23 2013:	Sessions from 9:00 AM until 6:00 PM Book Exhibit: 11:00 AM – 5 PM Opening Reception: 6:00 - 7:00 PM
Friday, May 24, 2013:	Sessions from 8:10 AM until 6:30 PM. Book Exhibit: 9 AM – 5 PM Special Readings and Receptions: 6:30-8:00 PM
Saturday, May 25, 2013:	Sessions from 8:10 AM until 6:30 PM. Book Exhibit: 9:00 AM – 2:00 PM ALA Business Meeting for Society Reps: 5:10--6:30 ALA Reception: 6:30 - 7:30 PM
Sunday, May 26, 2013:	Sessions from 8:30 AM until 1:00 PM

ALA Guidelines: The most common ALA format is a time slot of one hour and twenty minutes with three papers and a chair. This permits some time for discussion and three papers of approximately 20 minutes (or ten typed double-spaced pages). Organizers of panels are free to use other formats provided they respect the time limits. Please note that the normal reading time for a paper is two minutes per double-spaced page (or 20 minutes for a 10-page paper). Furthermore, the ALA encourages panel organizers to experiment with innovative formats including discussion groups and panels featuring more speakers and briefer papers. Chairs will make sure that the panels start and end on time and that no speaker goes beyond the allotted time limit. Chairs may NOT present papers on the panels that they are moderating, and no one may present more than one paper at the ALA conference. Individuals may, however, present a paper on one panel, and chair other panels, and/or also present on roundtable discussions.

Procedures for Individual Proposals: Individuals may propose either a paper or a panel or round table to the conference director no earlier than December 1, 2012 and no later than the deadline of January 30, 2013. The conference director will give preference to papers and panels on authors, texts, and topics not covered by the member societies of the ALA. Those proposing a paper or panel on a topic represented by an author society should consult with the relevant society before submitting the proposal to the ALA. All proposals must be by email and should be both pasted in and included as attachments (preferably in WORD).

For an Individual Paper: In the subject line of the email, please put ALA 2013 Proposal: and then a brief title of between one and five words. That will enable the conference director to file emails efficiently. Please provide a clear and useful title for your paper and then an abstract describing the paper (usually between 250-600 words) and then a brief discussion of your status (i.e., an Associate Professor who has published a book and several articles on this topic/author; a graduate student who is offering part of his/her dissertation, etc.) or a two-page vita if that is easier. It is important that your abstract enable the conference director and his advisory committee to evaluate the nature of your work. You must also indicate whether you need any audio-visual equipment to present your work. Please provide a phone number (which will only be used if email fails to work for some reason).

In choosing papers, the conference director may need to emphasize the ways in which individual papers contribute to the formation of logical and coherent panels,

For a panel: Please follow the sample below so the conference director can paste in the panels and round tables that are accepted.

In the subject line of the email, please put ALA 2013 Proposal: and then a brief title of between one and five words. In your proposal, which you should both paste into the email and provide as an attachment (preferably in Word), begin with the information in the sample below.

After providing the panel information in a form that can be pasted directly into the program, please provide a clear description of the panel and its goals, the titles of individual papers, appropriate abstracts for the papers, and a brief description of the participants and their relevant work. It is crucial that you note any audio-visual needs in your proposal. Finally, please provide your phone number (which will only be used if email fails to work for some reason.)

Please consult the following Sample.

The Sublime in the American Gothic Tradition

Organizer and Chair: Joseph Goodscholar, University of Great Hopes

1. "Irony and Angst in the Gothic Novels of the Early Republic," Noah Problem, College of Notre Doubt
2. "The Beautiful Garden in Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter," Raphael Hythlodoy, University of East London
3. "Beyond the Castle: Gothic Transformations in the Humor of American Realism," Uriah Heap, Independent Scholar

Audio-Visual Equipment required: None

OR: if the organizer is not the chair of the session, then write

Organized by: Name of Individual organizer
And then Chair: Name

Please remember that individuals may NOT chair panels on which they present papers.

Please note that the sample above has no formatting (no bold, no CAPS). Please note that the presentations are listed with numbers and then five spaces then the information. They are NOT INDENTED as some word processing panels will do automatically unless you turn off auto-format. Book titles are italicized. Commas are used to separate the title and presenter and affiliation and there is no period at the end of each listing. If the conference organizer can cut and paste, then everything goes quickly.

In evaluating the quality of a proposal, the ALA's selection committee tends to be suspicious of any panel in which all the participants are from the same institution or are all graduate students. The ALA welcomes panels that represent a diversity of perspectives and demonstrates relevant expertise. We believe that graduate students are best served when they are on panels with senior scholars and assistant professors.

Some reminders:

The deadline for all proposals from individuals and panels from author societies is January 30, 2013.

No-one may present more than one paper at an ALA conference. It is possible to present a paper and chair another panel or panels and also participate in a round-table discussion.

Please make sure to indicate any audio-visual requests with your proposal. Late a/v requests may not be considered.

Please make sure to follow the instructions above. The use of electronic submissions enables the ALA to maintain the lowest conference fee of any major organization.

Participating author societies are required to advertise the national conference and are expected to post call for papers or announce their plans on the ALA website.

The conference director will attempt to acknowledge the receipt of all emails within 3 business days and will try to respond as quickly as possible to all proposals.

Please note that the American Literature Association maintains the lowest conference fees of any major scholarly organization because it operates without a paid staff. We cannot help you find a roommate or spend a great deal of time answering personal phone calls. If you have any questions that are not answered by this announcement, please contact the conference director, Olivia Carr Edenfield at carr@georgiasouthern.edu or Alfred Bendixen, Executive Director of the ALA, at abendixen@tamu.edu.

Thank you for your support of the American Literature Association

www.americanliterature.org