Upper Division General Electives (6 units)
Select 6 units of upper division courses in sociology in consultation with adviser.

Inequalities and Diversity Option Independent Study Opportunities
The directed study course (SOC 4990) allows students to expand on their special interests. A directed study is usually in an area that the department's normal course offerings do not cover. Students meet regularly with their faculty supervisor and earn 1 to 3 units of credit and up to 6 units if the course is repeated. Individual research projects may involve library research, case studies, or field research.

Inequalities and Diversity Option Internship and Cooperative Education Opportunities
Sociology majors can earn up to 3 units per semester up to a maximum of 6 units through the Sociology Internships and Service Learning course (SOC 4050) or by enrolling in Cooperative Education (SOC 3980 or 4980) by arranging a work agreement with an approved agency (such as a government agency, business, or citizen group) and their course instructor the semester before enrolling in the course. See the Sociology Internship and Service Learning Coordinator or class instructor for specific prerequisites, course requirements, list of approved agencies, workload agreement, and other program details.

Honors Program in the Inequalities and Diversity Option
The Sociology department sponsors a Senior Honors Program for our top undergraduates. During their final undergraduate year, students undertaking the honors thesis conduct an independent research project under the supervision of a faculty member in the Sociology department and write a senior honors thesis. Eligibility criteria are: a sociology student with senior class standing, minimum of 3.5 grade point average, and completion of specific courses required for the major program (SOC 2010, SOC 3900 or SOC 3910, SOC 4120, and at least six upper division courses in the Sociology major). Students in the Inequalities and Diversity Option register for SOC 4930 after obtaining permission to enroll.
