

Aggrey Bernard Nyende

Dr. Aggrey Bernard Nyende is a senior lecturer in plant breeding at the Department of Horticulture at Jomo Kenyatta University of Agriculture and Technology (JKUAT) - Kenya and is also the Director at the Institute for Biotechnology Research (IBR) at the same university. At JKUAT he manages biotechnology/ tissue culture research and development and provides support structure for biotechnology research innovations and products. He has a patent under the Kenyan intellectual protection regime on “artificial seed production using encapsulation techniques”. He is also an associate and consultant at the International Services for the Acquisition of Agri-Biotechnology Application (ISAAA) and the African Biotechnology Stakeholders Forum (ABSF) in Kenya. He has published over 20 referred journal articles both in international and African journals over the last 10 years. He has also co-authored two books on “Experiences in strengthening inter-institutional networking in biotechnology”- 2008 and “Status of crop biotechnology in the Sub- Sahara Africa-A cross-country analysis”- 2010. He can be reached at: abnyende@hotmail.com; Tel: 2540721624419

Mary Pat McEnrue

Mary Pat McEnrue, Ph.D. is Professor of Management, former Chair and Associate Dean of the School of Business and Economics at California State University, Los Angeles (CSLA). She teaches MBA and undergraduate courses in Managing Innovation, New Venture Management, Small Business Management, Leadership and General Management. Dr. McEnrue has served as a consultant and has managed teams of consultants providing start-up and ongoing technical assistance to a host of small businesses and emerging growth companies. She has conducted field research on behalf of companies seeking to enhance the service they deliver to small business customers as well as research on management, leadership development and innovation. Dr. McEnrue has published in a wide range of professional and academic journals in her field. She formerly served on the editorial board of the Journal of Developmental Entrepreneurship. Currently, her research focuses on creation, commercialization and value capture in the biotech industry within emerging economies. She can be reached at: mmcenru@calstatela.edu; Tel: 01113233432890 Skype: MP McEnrue

Wilberforce Senelwa

Mr. Wilberforce Senelwa is a tutorial fellow in entrepreneurship and the timetabler at the Department of Entrepreneurship Procurement Department (EPD) at Jomo Kenyatta University of Agriculture and Technology (JKUAT), Kenya. He is currently a doctoral candidate in Entrepreneurship at the same department. He teaches undergraduate and diploma courses in accounting for small enterprises, entrepreneurship and small business management. His research interests include new venture creation, innovation and new technologies among micro and small enterprises. Mr. Senelwa has been an avid participant and/or business advisor for national business plan competition dubbed “Jitihada”- an initiative to identify and nurture raw entrepreneurial talents and skills among youth in Kenya for several years.. He can be reached at: Email: wsenelwa@gmail.com or Tel: +254722923610