LEAD TEACHER POSITION FOR EARTLY INTERVENTION PROGRAM LOCATED AT CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY, LOS ANGELES

Centro de Niños y Padres provides early home and school intervention for children with special needs from birth to three years of age and their families. The program serves families who reside in the culturally diverse community surrounding the campus of California State University, Los Angeles.

REQUIREMENTS:
1. Bachelor's Degree in Early Childhood Special Education, Child Development or other closely related field.
2. Experience with infants and preschool age children, with and without disabilities.
3. Master's Degree or enrollment in a Master's program or Credential program in Special Education highly desired.
5. California driver's license and an insured car necessary for home visits.

RESPONSIBILITIES:
The Lead Teacher is a member of an interdisciplinary team responsible for developmentally appropriate education and service delivery to infants and toddlers (0-3) with developmental disabilities or who are at risk for delays, and their families, in a multicultural environment.

Specific responsibilities may include:
- Center and home-based teaching
- Assessment
- Individual Family Service Plan (IFSP) implementation
- Working with families to obtain community services
- Supervision of assistant teachers and university students in training

SALARY/BENEFITS:
Salary will be based on education and experience. Health insurance, retirement and vacation benefits are provided.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION OR TO APPLY, PLEASE CALL OR SEND RESUME TO:
Maria Andrade Moberg, Director (818) 512-2636; mariamoberg@yahoo.com

Posting Period July 2, 2021 to July 31, 2021