The Power of Community: A Community Conversations Event CSULA

<https://powerincommunity.eventbrite.com>

The Community Conversation Series is aimed at providing faculty, staff, and students the opportunity to engage in and hear from leading Macro policy and practice leaders about pertinent issues which concern our communities. This event will highlight the importance of POWER and allocation of POWER in communities. How does it start? How do we inspire it within our communities, locales, and with each other? What is the critical mass that moves issues from a local to global concern? Hear from panelists and students who have engaged in community organizing. Participate in Break-Out Sessions geared towards learning skills in organizing like accountability sessions, learning about social movements, etc. This full day event will be highlighted by student community projects, fantastic speaker.

English Department Grad Student Conference

You are cordially invited to this year's Significations Graduate Research Conference, which will be held on Friday, May 5, 2017 from 8:30 am to 5pm at the University Student Union. It is tremendously exciting to see so many of our department's graduate students presenting at Significations. Significations allows our graduate students the opportunity to share their recent research in English Studies, and all of our students will be delighted if you could attend the conference. Students are very appreciative of faculty attendance, and it would be a wonderful show of support if you could attend their sessions.

This year's keynote is Dr. Annie McClanahan. Dr. Annie McClanahan is an Assistant Professor of English at UC Irvine. Her book Dead Pledges: Debt, Crisis, and 21st Century Culture (Stanford UP, 2016), reads post-2008 objects (from conceptual poems to horror films) alongside developments in the credit economy (from credit scoring to anti-eviction activism). Her work has appeared in theory & event, Representations, Journal of American Studies, Journal of Cultural

Economies, South Atlantic Quarterly, and elsewhere. She is currently embarking on a new project exploring the cultural history of microeconomics. The title of her keynote address is “Credit, Debt, and Social Personhood.”

Attached is a schedule of events. Please join us for breakfast and lunch. Our graduate students are looking forward to celebrating the 22nd Annual Graduate Student Conference with all of you. Please feel free to invite all of your students too. Our graduate students will be tremendously grateful for your support. Please come in to see our students shine on their very special day of academic glory and achievement.

Fine Arts Gallery to display senior projects
